50 greatest coaches of all time.

Dear Network Marketer,

Six years ago Disney released a movie titled “Miracle” which tells the true story of Herb Brooks, the player-turned-coach who led the 1980 U.S. Olympic hockey team to victory over the seemingly invincible Russian squad.

If you have already seen “Miracle”, then watch it again. Notice how Coach Brooks continually “manipulates” his players to get the highest level of performance out of them.

More important, notice how Coach Brooks raised the level of expectation for his young hockey players. That’s what the great coaches do. They “raise the bar” to get more out of their athletes.

Below is the list of the “50 Greatest Coaches of all Time” as defined by “The Sporting News” in July 2009. All of these great coaches continually “raised the bar” for their athletes. To read the full article and to learn how the list was compiled, click on this link: 50 GREATEST COACHES OF ALL TIME.

-----o-----

You don't have a "coach". So YOU must raise your own bar.

As a network marketer, you don't have a "coach", not by the same measure, as does an athlete. You're not accountable to a "coach". You don't have someone constantly measuring and analyzing your performance. You don't have someone constantly "raising the bar" for you.

Therefore, you must set the standard for yourself.

You must choose to learn what needs to be learned.

You must define the expectations.

You must set the goals.

You must do the evaluating.

You must do the planning.

You must “crack the whip”.

You must find the inspiration.

You must provide the motivation.

YOU MUST RAISE YOUR OWN BAR.

Nobody can do it for you. You must do it yourself.

If you could be a “fly on the wall” in the homes of the great network marketers, you’d see that they are self-determined, self-motivated, self-responsible, and self-functional.

The great network marketers all raise their own bar.

You must do it, too. Believe me when I tell you that you can. It’s simply a choice you make.

Sincerely,

Tracy Biller
