Dear Network Marketer,

I want to share with you a powerful email I got this morning from Greg Clark:

Dear Tracy,

I just wanted to write you and say “thank you” for all you do for us. I’ll have my entire leadership group on your Friday morning training call, about 70 of us.

I also want to tell you that your new web site is fantastic. On Monday I went online and compared your web site to a dozen other web sites that sell network marketing training. Not one of those sites comes even close to yours in presenting the materials. Your site looks the best, is the most professional, and is by far the most “navigational friendly” of all the training sites. When I send my people to your site, they know exactly what they’re getting. Other sites have so much stuff and there’s tremendous confusion. On top of all that, the free training you give us puts you heads and shoulders above the rest.

Best of all is that your web site and your training CDs doesn’t contain any of that touch-feely stuff that is rampant throughout our industry. That’s what I’ve always liked about you. You’re a no-nonsense guy who gives us exactly what we need to succeed in network marketing. I don’t have time for all the cutsie feel-good crap, and neither does my downline. We want to be told exactly what we have to do to succeed in network marketing, and that's what you do with your web site and training CDs. My leaders still talk about the training call you did for us last November. You were on fire! Thanks for letting us record it.

I know I've typed a lot, and I'm sorry for the length of this email. I just wanted you to know that me and my group really appreciate you and your training. You're the best! We're looking forward to your next training call and hope you do a lot more of them like you used to with the Super Training Calls.

Sincerely,
Greg Clark

P.S. Any chance you'll re-release the Cajun Candy leads? Nine of us bought those leads, and they're the best we've ever worked!

Thanks, Greg. I truly appreciate what you wrote.

Yes, I'm very much aware of the network marketing training that other web sites offer, or rather, what they don't offer.

Yes, our industry is full of crappy training, and always has been. I discuss this in great detail in my free ebook "Training For Success".

I spoke with a fellow last night who told me that his "successful upline guru" told him to call people from genealogy reports and ask if they are looking for a "part-time or full-time job." He wasn't getting any response and called and asked me for help. I told him to do exactly as I teach on the Momentum CD. He apologized to me for letting his upline guru getting him off track. I told him he need not apologize to me; he needs to apologize to himself and his family. By getting off track he wasted valuable time.

Last week I spoke with a gal who told me her upline told her to invite friends over for an in-home presentation, but not to tell them what it's about until they arrive. She called and asked me why a successful top earner would teach such an unproductive and unethical recruiting tactic? I told her it's because they don't want to tell how they really did it. They don't want their downline to know that they recruited network marketers from their previous downline genealogy reports and contact lists.

Yes, I'm proud of the training I've produced, and will continue to produce. It's the absolute best in the industry. No other training is more succinct, more powerful, more duplicable.

Yes, I'm bragging, but it's the truth.

Sincerely,

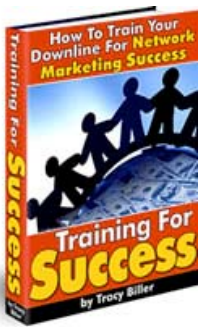

Tracy Biller
